TAMAULIPAS REGULATIONS AND PROCEDURES ON DEATH CASES

The State of Tamaulipas, Mexico does not have an official morgue. Instead, the government has an agreement with local funeral homes that function as morgues for all death cases. State regulations do not specify a term for interment, and funeral homes may keep the remains for varying amounts of time, depending on if the body is embalmed.

The two funeral homes that work with the state government as morgues in Nuevo Laredo are:

Funeraria Valdez
2161 Campeche
Phone: 011-52-867-719-0402 (dialing from the U.S.)

Funeraria La Paz
3352 Francisco I. Madero
Phone: 011-52-867-712-0212 (dialing from the U.S.)

CREMATION

Cremation costs are approximately $1,000.00 USD, which includes processing the proper documentation (death registration, death certificate, and the permit from Secretary of Health). The remains are preserved in a simple plastic container. If the family wants a different type of container, they may purchase one separately. The funeral home can ship the ashes through the services of a courier company, for which the family would incur an additional cost.

SHIPMENT OF REMAINS TO THE U.S.

The best option for shipments of remains to the United States is to contact a funeral home located in Laredo, Texas, who can then work with the funeral home in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico throughout the entire process. Once the remains are in Texas, they can be transferred to any city in the United States. Mexican funeral homes charge approximately $1,200.00 USD, which includes a simple casket, embalming, documentation, and shipment to Texas.

EXHUMATION REGULATIONS

Remains buried in Tamaulipas can be exhumed up to six years after interment.

AUTOPSIES

The District Attorney’s office is in charge of ordering an autopsy, depending on the case. If the person dies of natural causes in a hospital, the autopsy is not necessary, unless demanded by the family. If a person dies in a hospital as consequence of a crime, the autopsy is obligatory. All deaths that occur in a public space will involve the prosecutor, who will order the autopsy.
COAHUILA REGULATIONS AND PROCEDURES ON DEATH CASES

The State of Coahuila, Mexico, has an official morgue named SEMEFO (Servicio Medico Forense), which may keep the remains for three days without embalming. After that, the remains would have to be buried in a pauper’s grave or a graveyard for unclaimed remains.
